

STANDARD MANUALS EXEMPTIONS

The manual exemptions permits a security to be distributed in a particular state without being registered if the company issuing the security has a listing for that security in a securities manual recognized by the state. However, it is not enough for the security to be listed in a recognized manual. The listing entry must contain:

1. The names of issuers, officers, and directors
2. An issuer's balance sheet
3. A profit and loss statement for either the fiscal year preceding the balance sheet or for the most recent fiscal year of operations

Furthermore, the manual exemption is a nonissuer exemption restricted to secondary trading transactions, making it unavailable for issuers selling newly issued securities.

As you will see from the following chart, most of the accepted manuals are those published in Standard and Poor's, Moody's Investor Service (or Mergent's if the state has amended its laws and rules to recognize the official name change —See IMPORTANT NOTE below), Fitch's Investment Service, and Best's Insurance Reports, and many states expressly recognize these manuals. A smaller number of states declare that they "recognize securities manuals" but do not specify the recognized manuals. The states that do not have any provisions do not expressly recognize the manual exemption.

Securities practitioners wishing to claim the manual exemption in states that do not have any provisions or in states that simply declare their recognition of the exemption without specifying particular manuals are advised to contact the securities administrators in those states to determine their exact position on this exemption.

IMPORTANT NOTE

Moody's Manuals no longer exist, and in their place Mergent's Manuals are now recognized and accepted in those states that previously recognized Moody's Manuals, whether or not the state has amended its laws or regulations or adopted a policy statement or an administrative order to officially recognize the name change from Moody's to Mergent's.
